

The prodigal son

“There was once a boy who one day decided to run away from home and go off on an adventure. He took all his things and left to see the world.

This made his father very sad.

But the boy’s journey turned out to be much more difficult than he had thought, and he soon began to long for his family.

So the boy decided to go back home. His father received him with open arms!

The father was happy that his son was back home and gave a great party.”

This is the story of the prodigal son, written several thousand years ago. How would the story play out in our time? What if the father and the son had smartphones?

Use your imagination and think about how the conversation between father and son would go. For example, what would the son say if, in the middle of his journey, he starts missing home?

Fill in the speech bubbles, you can also use smileys to express your feelings.
